

Consent to Participate and Release

Dear Parent/Guardian:

Your child has been invited to participate in a very special art exhibition project entitled, do it (in school), at Hunter East Harlem Gallery (HEHG), in New York City on the following date(s): April 1 – 12, 2019 (the “Activity”). The exhibition is a collaboration with Studio in a School (SIAS), Independent Curators International (ICI), and Hunter East Harlem Gallery at Hunter College. For the project, student participants (your child) will help create artworks inside the gallery through a series of instructions given by world-renowned artists. The project, which is calling “do it (in school)”, was first initiated by the curator Hans Ulrich Obrist in 1993 and has been created all over the world since.

By signing below, you are giving your permission for each of the following:

1. My child may participate in the Activity.
2. My child’s artwork and my child’s signature as it appears on such artwork may be published, republished, reproduced, edited, exhibited, used, or distributed in other venues and in print publications or online or in other media by HEHG or partner organizations (ICI, SIAS), to support HEHG’s exhibition program in New York City.
3. Photographs and audio/visual recordings of my child may be taken during the exhibition building process, and such photographs and recordings as well as quotations from my child, may be used in a report, publication, webpage, or in other media outlets about or by HEHG or in invitations and other signage for HEHG’s exhibition program in New York City.

In addition, by signing below, I release HEHG, The City University of New York, and the Hunter College Foundation from liability for any claims (whether asserted by me or my child) in connection with my child’s participation in the Activity, use of my child’s artwork in the exhibition and use of my child’s name, image, likeness, photograph or quotations in connection with promoting the exhibition or publicizing it after the fact in reliance on this Consent and Release.
